State your headline: - _ "Headline: I feel stretched and close to burnout." _ - _ "Headline: I am excited about this new opportunity but unsure if it's wise." _ 2. Name your top 3 realities: - _ "Financially..." _ - _ "Emotionally..." _ - _ "Spiritually..." _ 3. Identify any pressure points: - _ "The biggest pressure right now is..." _ - _ "What keeps me awake at night is..." _ No one interrupts. No fixing yet. Just listening to understand. {/ stripped:

What am I deciding? - _ "I will speak to my wife about this by Friday." _ - _ "I will say no to this deal, even though it looks lucrative." _ - 2. What will I do in the next 7 days? - _ "I will send you an update message by Wednesday evening." _ - 3. What support do I need from you? - _ "I need you to challenge me if I start to drift from this decision." _ - _ "Please ask me specifically about my thought life next week." _ Agree one concrete follow-up date . {/ stripped: duplicate frontmatter block /} Step 6 - Follow-Up Rhythm To keep this script alive: - Use it weekly for crisis seasons , monthly for normal seasons . - Keep a simple log: date, headline, decisions. - Review: _ "What have we kept? Where have we drifted? What needs repairing?" _ This is how brotherhood moves from good intentions to disciplined loyalty .
