When All You Can Do Is Breathe

There are days when motivation is a joke. You're not lazy. You're not ungrateful. You're just carrying too much, too quietly.

There are days when motivation is a joke.

You're not lazy. You're not ungrateful.

You're just carrying too much, too quietly.

If today is heavy:

- Drink water.
- Eat something simple.
- Step outside for two minutes.
- Text one safe person: "I'm not okay."

That's not weakness. That's wisdom.

You don't have to be impressive today.

Some days, the victory is not progress. It's presence.

And if all you can do is breathe, then breathe like someone who still plans to return.
