

PUBLIC • PREMIUM

When Later Became Never

You didn't quit. You postponed. You delayed. You "waited for the right time." You told yourself you were being wise. And one day you looked up...

Abraham of London • 2026-04-21

You didn't quit.

You postponed.

You delayed. You "waited for the right time." You told yourself you were being wise.

And one day you looked up and realised "later" had turned into never.

Here's the raw truth:

You don't need more time. You need more truth.

Because the real reason is often:

- fear of failing
- fear of being seen
- fear of commitment
- fear of success

So you keep your dream in theory. Theory is safe. Reality demands courage.

This week, choose one "later" and kill it:

- schedule it
- start it badly
- do 30 minutes
- send the email
- make the call

Your future won't be built by intentions. It will be built by actions you stopped negotiating.

Later is a liar. And you've listened long enough.