

PUBLIC • PREMIUM

When You Need God To Interrupt You

Sometimes you don't need a new plan. You need an interruption. Because your life has become one long continuation: Same habits. Same patterns. Same compromises...

Abraham of London • 2026-04-27

Sometimes you don't need a new plan. You need an interruption.

Because your life has become one long continuation:

Same habits. Same patterns. Same compromises.

You're not in open sin. You're just in autopilot.

Here's the hard truth:

God rarely competes with noise.

If you keep your life loud, you will keep missing Him and then blame Him for being "silent."

This week, create space for interruption:

- one hour with no phone
- one walk with no music
- one prayer that is mostly listening

Ask one question and stop talking:

"Lord, what have I been ignoring?"

If you fear the answer, that's a clue.

Divine interruption isn't punishment. It's rescue.

Because sometimes the most loving thing God does is disrupt the life you built so He can rebuild the life you were meant for.